

Enhanced Learning Strategy proudly presents the return of....

Web 2.0 Smack Down

Offer of Service

This offer of service is to support schools and teachers with the alignment of technology to meet their students' goals.

As you may be aware, we will be deploying over 3,000 technology devices within our schools and centres each year. At the same time, we are seeing the explosion of educational interactive Web 2.0 tools that can enhance the learning environment for both teachers and students. The question is: what tools will work best in our classrooms and how can we ensure the alignment of these Web 2.0 tools to meet our student learning goals?

To help teachers wade through the jungle of Web 2.0 tools, we have developed this cutting edge workshop.

If you are interested in having the Web 2.0 Smack Down visit your school, please send a request to me (macleanr@etsb.qc.ca) to book this Offer of Service. This session is designed to be interactive, and sharing is encouraged. In our experience, these sessions work best when they are designed for a group of no larger than 20.

This Offer of Service is at no cost to the schools and centres; however, it is expected that the school will cover the release costs of their own teachers and any other related costs.

The session can be set up as a half-day of intense review of the differences between Web 1.0 vs. Web 2.0 tools for teachers and students. With another half-day set aside for teachers to experiment with the Web 2.0 tools that were previously covered, another other option may be an hour and a half session after-school during common presence time.

If you have any questions, please contact me at anytime.

Thank you,

Randy
